THE GREAT WILL CONTEST.

A DAY DEVOTED TO SPIRITUALISM. TESTIMONY OF MRS. E. F. BISHOP AND MRS. MARY L. STONE-THE COMMODORE'S OBEDIENCE TO

THE ORDERS OF SPIRITS. The introduction of the testimony of Mrs. E. F. Bishop and Mrs. Mary L. Stone in regard to the influence of Spiritualism on Commodore Vanderbilt enlivened the great will case yesterday. Both testified in effect that the Commodore said he intended to follow the instructions of the spirits, who told him to give the greater part of his property to his son, William H. Vanderbilt.

THE TESTIMONY.

Before the examination of the first witness, Mr. Clinton urged a further objection to the "Spiritual testimony." He said that the testimony of Mrs. Steddard must be rejected for all purposes; that is, if they were before a jury the Court would instruct them that they should not receive her testimony, as she had been shown to have testified faisely in a material particular. The Surrogate answered that there was no question that the Court would instruct a jury that if they found that the witness and testified falsely in one particular, they would reject her whole testimony; but still it would be a question left to the jury whether she did testify falsely.

Mrs. E. Fietcher Bishop testified that she had had several conversations with Commodore Vanderbilt on the subject of Spiritualism. They began in 1868, after the death of his first wife. In the first interview he said that he had employed several Spiritual physicians, and they had given him great consolation. In 1873 he advised her husband to employ one of these physicians. He had de-rived great benefit from them, and had been enabled to rived great benefit from them, and had been enabled to know what his wife was doing in the other world. In 1872 or 1873 the Commodore said that he had had a revelation from his son George. He savised him to make William his "head-man," as the girls did not know how to take care of money, and Cornelius was an invalid, neapable of business, who ought to be put in an asylum. The witness's husband died in March, 1874; a short time before that she saw the Commodore at her husband's office, No. 242 Broadsway. At this interview the Commodore said that his wife had been revealed to him through Spiritual ductors. They had told him to give the property to William, as he was the oldest, had had experience and knew how to take care of property, and because the other children did not love him so well.

On the cross-examination the witness said that when the Commodore taked as he did about the girls, she told him he was getting into his second childhood. He answered that he was mystified and couldn't understand it all.

wered that he was mystified and couldn't understand it all.

Mr. Clinton—Do you remember swearing, when you testified before, that the Commodore said he would distribute the property equally among his children, and that you never heard him say anything different from this?

The witness was unwilling to answer the question categorically. Several of her repiles were stricken out in which she said that she had testified to the first part of the question, but that the Commodore had said other things to her "spiritually," to which she was not allowed to testify formerly.

Mr. Clinton—I move to strike out that answer.

Mrs. Bishop—Then you strike out the truth.

The Surrogate reprimanded the witness, who said further that she could not remember whether she had formerly testified that the last time she saw the Commodore in her husband's office was between 1867 and 1869. She tried to explain that she had recently found papers which established the dates, but these answers were stricken out. Mr. Clinton examined are upon her associations. She said that she had never known Mrs. Stoddard until she saw her in court, but she took lunch one day with her at the Astor House, going there with other friends.

Mr. Clinton—What friends !—Mrs. La Bau for one ! A.

Mr. Clinton-What friends !-Mrs. La Bau for one ! A.

Mr. Clinton—What friends!—Mrs. La Bau for one! A.—Yes.

Q.—How long has she been your friend! A.—An acquaintance since you introduced me to her.

The witness added that she had not had a conversation with any one connected with the case since last Wednesday, with the exception of Mr. Lord. She had only a slight acquaintence with Esther King; she denied having met Esther King and Mrs. Van Felt in Mr. Lord's office, and did not know Abby Carleton. During the last six months she had resided at No. 1 Irvingplace, where she kent a "Shakespearian Academy", at No. 15 West Eleventh-st.; in Harlem, and now she lived at No. 206 West Twenty-third-st. She had been out of business for six months, and had been supported by her son. She had kept boarding-house on Madison-ave., on Fifth-ave., and other streats. When Mr. Clinton asked her for the names of boarders, she meutioned several persons of social prominence, and then asked pertly. "Are you as spiritualist!" asked Mr. Clinton. "I believe in God, but I am not a Spiritualist," was the answer.

Q. What is Spiritualist! A.—I don't know.

leve in God, but I am not a spiritualist, was the answer.

Q.—What is Spiritualism ! A.—I don't know.

Q.—What did you mean by Spiritualism when you used the word in your testimony this morning ! A.—I meant that I thought the Commodore believed in ghosts.

The question was repeated, when ex-Judge Black objected to Mr. Clinton getting his information on theology from the witness.

Q.—Do you know what Spiritualism means ! A.—Yes, but I don't know what you mean.

The question was then withdrawn. On redirect exmination by Mr. Lord, the witness said that she became more definite in regard to dates by means of papers that were on storage when she testified before.

EVIDENCE OF MRS. STONE.

EVIDENCE OF MRS. STONE. Mrs. Mary L. Stone was recalled. She testified in regard to a coversation with Commodore Vanderbilt at his office in October, 1874. She said she asked the Con modore's assistance for her school. He proposed a hall for her up town, but she objected because it was used by Spiritualists. He said that was no objection. She asked him if he were a Spiritualist. He said, yes; he had had several communications on various matters from his dead wife, telling, tim to leave his property to William, and he was going to do it. He said he couldn't do anything for her unless she got spiritual advice, and when she did that he would do something: She told him she feared the effort would fail because she was not a believer; then she left him. "When I went away," continued the witness, "I was overtaken by William H. Vanderhilt, and he began a conversation with me. He said that he had overheard what the Commodore had said to me. modore's assistance for her school. He proposed a hall a believer; then she left him. "When I were away," continued the witness, "I was overtaken by William H. Vanderbilt, and he began a conversation with me. He said that he had overheard what the Commedore had said to me. 'He won't do anything for you'; he said, 'but you go to the Commodore and tell him that the spirits will not help you, but they have sent a message to him from his dead wife, and she tells him to give his property to William. Father won't do anything for you; but if you will do this, I will give you what you need."

At this testimony William H. Vanderollt smiled broadly. The witness added: "I told him that I would do it. The next day I went to the Commodore's office and saw him there. William was there too. I saw the Commedore in an unser room. I told him that the spirits would do nothing for me, but had told me to tell him the message from his dead wite, and I gave it to him. He said that he had already been told to do so by the spirits, and he intended to do it. William followed me and said, 'Here is $50,' which I declined to accept. He said, 'Very well,' and let me."

Mr. Lord offered to prove a conversation overheard by the winness, which took place between the Commodore and William in 1875, after the will was made. It was the conversation, formerly excluded, in which the Commodore and William in 1875, after the will was made. It was the conversation, formerly excluded, in which the Commodore was claimed to have said to William; 'I have made the will as you wished, and as you claimed the spirits desired." Mr. Lord said this was not to prove the conspiracy, but only to prove the Commodore's behef in Spiritualiam. Mr. Choate argued that this declaration by the Commodore did not throw any light upon his mental condition two weeks before, when he made the will. The Surrogate said at first that he must adhere to his former opinion in excluding the testimory; but after hearing prolonged argument he said that he would rereceive it, subject to a motion to strike out.

The witness was then allowed to

The cross-examination of this witness by Mr. Clinton was a review of the woman's life, especially during the last few days. Nothing was elicited, however, which was of special interest or which compromised the witness. Mr. Clinton claimed, however, that he was laying the foundation for proving the conspiracy by which the Spiritual testimony had been "manufactured."

An argument will doubtless take place this morning in regard to whether the contestant shall be allowed more time to introduce additional "Spiritual testimony."

THE STATEN ISLAND MYSTERY.

SEEKING OUT IMPORTANT CLEWS.

THE CORONER PROMISES STARTLING TESTIMONY TO DAY-TALKS WITH REINHART'S NEIGHBORS. Every event that came to light yesterday tends to prove the guilt of Edward Reinhart, charged with being accessory to the death of his paramour or wife, Annie Degnan, and of burying her body in the woods near Silver Lake, S. I. Such, at least, is the opinion of Coroner Dempsey and the Staten Island police. The Coroner, yesterday, was in Newark, and while there and in New-York secured evidence of the guilt of Reinbart. On his return to New-Brighton last evening he was reticent about his investigations, but said that important testimony would be produced at the adjourned session of the inquest to-night from witnesses whom he had seen during the day. Coroner Dempsey seemed perfectly satisfied of the guilt of the accused man, and promised some surprising revelations

Dempsey seemed perfectly satisfied of the guilt of the accused man, and promised some surprising revelations to-night.

For various reasons the inquest on Monday evening was reopened after the departure of the reporters. Rosa Herborn testified: "I am twelve years old, and live on Gove-st. Stapleton. Mr. and Mrs. Reinhart hved in my father's house, and I have heard them quarrel more than once. Mrs. Reinhart danot say anything about moving. Mother made some soup for his wife once, and he threatened her if she ate any. I saw him throw out soup that other people sent to the house. I saw the barrel the morning of the day he left. He rolled it out of the bouse. He crossed the road and said he was going to carry the barrel to his sister's. He brought the wheelbarrow back empty. On the barrel were a bag and carpet, tied to the barrel by a cord. I have never seen the woman since they moved." William Moser testified: "I am fourteen years old and knew Reinhart. I lent him a wheelbarrow the Saturday he left. The barrel which I saw was like a flour barrel. There was a carpet on it—no bag or rope. I could recognize the woman." Mrs. Herborn, again recalled, testified that the Reinhart family did not have crockery enough to fill a barrel.

LATEST ELECTION NEWS.

THE SITUATION NOT MUCH ALTERED. Latest returns from Ohio do not materially alter the result already announced. The Republicans claim ten Congressmen and have hopes of gaining one more which would give them a majority of the delegation. In Indiana the probability is that the Democrats have elected their State ticket about 5,000 majority. There is by further news about Congressmen no or the Legislature. In West Virginia three Democratic Congressmen have been elected, and the State is Democratic by 5,000 majority.

THE REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

THE PARTY CARRIES THE STATE, AND EXPECTS TO HAVE A MAJORITY OF THE CONGRESSMEN. BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9, 1 a. M.—The indications point to the election of the entire Republican State ticket in Ohio, and the success of the Republicans in a majority of the doubtful Congressional districts. The first two districts, which comprise the City of Cincinnati, elect Republican Congressmen for the first time in several years. Benj. Butterworth is elected over Milton Sayler in the 1st by several hundred majority, and ex-Governor Tom Young has undoubtedly beaten L. W. Goss (Dem.) in the IId. The Republicans even claim the HIId, or Dayton district, which was Democratic two years ago by over 2,000. Converse (Dem.) is defeated in the IXth by English (Ind. Dem. and Rep.) Neal (Rep.) defeats James Emmett in the XIIth by 1,200 majority. The Hon. Charles Foster has made tremendous gains in the VIIIth, but probably not enough to overcome the 4,800 Democratic majority in the district. The Xth, General Ewing's district, and the VIIth, have not been heard from.

The XIVth, XVth, XVIth Districts are Democratic sure. The XVIIth, XVIIIth, XIXth and XXth are Republican sure. The XIth, Vth, XIIIth are still in doubt. The Republicans expect to elect enough Congressmen to give them a majority in the delega-

Returns on the Greenback vote are very meagre. The Indiana State ticket is probably Democratic with the Legislature in doubt. The Republicans here are jubilant, and the streets are still througed with CINCINNATI GAZETIE.

ELEVEN REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMEN. REPUBLICANS CLAIM A MAJORITY OF THE DELEGA-TION.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 8.—The Republicans claim that V. B. Horton has been elected over General Ewing in the Xth Congressional District. Mr. Converse (Dem.) will probably puil through in the IXth District by a small majority. The Republicans now claim elven Congressmen, with a good chance for one or two more. CONVERSE'S DEFEAT DENIED.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

COLUMBUS, Oct. 8 .- Nineteen wards and two townships give 750 majority for Converse (Dem.) He is elected by 1,000 majority.

INDIANA.

DEMOCRATIC BY 5,000 MAJORITY. Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 9-1 a. M .- Sixty townships show a Democratic gain of 187, and an increase in the National vote of 640. The indications are that the whole Democratic State ticket is elected by 5,000 or 6,000 majority.

WEST VIRGINIA.

A FULL DEMOCRATIC DELEGATION. BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.

WHEELING, Oct. 8 .- The vote in this city shows a large decrease in the gress from the 1st District, as compared with his vote in 1876. It is thought that John R. Hubbard, his Republican opponent, has carried this county. Scattering returns from other points indicate a decreased Decocratic vote in the district. It is impossible to say how it will stand, but it is hardly probable that Mr. Wilson is defeated.

The Hd District returns indicate that Benjamin F. Martin (Dem.) .s reillected.

There is nothing worth mentioning from the IIId EDITOR OF The Intelligencer. District.

THE RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

TWENTY-FIVE DEAD.

THE CAUSE OF THE DREADFUL CASUALTY NOW KNOWN-THE ENGINEERS TRY TO SAVE THE TRAIN.

Bosron, Oct. 9, 1:30 a. m .- The cause of the disaster on the Old Colony Railroad this afternoon is now explained by the statement of Charles West gate, the engineer of the leading locomotive. He escaped without injury. He says that when about a quarter of a mile this side of Wollaston, he saw, about 300 yards aheao, a freight ear running on to the main track from the "siding." He instantly whistled "down brakes," and reversed his engine. He, and his fireman, Dennison, remained on the engine, and when it struck the car, both men were thrown off, Dennison being badly Westgate claims that he did all in his power to stop the train, but that he had the right of way, and as the switch was all right he did not expect to see a freight car so suddenly emerge from the "siding" which is seldom used. On the Old Colony Railroad all trains run to the left instead of to the right, as is the custom on other roads, and the freight car was being switched upon the right track, and had mearly crossed when the accident occurred.

Further returns from the seene of disaster state that the killed number twenty-five or more. Most of those killed were in the baggage, English coach, and two passenger cars. The two latter were partly telescoped, and in these many were injured. About 300 or 400 persons were on these cars, and not less than half the number were hurt. In addition to the names of the dead telegraphed heretofore, are John Boyle, a coal-heaver; Juo. Wright, a negro of Boston; Maurice Green, of Boston, and Paul Cowley, a brakeman.

A Herald reporter says that from Plimpton to Braintree the rate of speed at no time exceeded fifteen miles per hour, but at the latter point the double-track was reached, and the speed somewhat increased until Quincy was reached, ten miles out of Boston, when it was redneed again to the original rate. Upon passing Wollaston, six miles out, the passengers heard two sharp blasts of the whistles of the locomotives which followed each other in quick succession and immediately afterward the air brakes were applied. Quicker than it can be related the train was off the track, and running over the sleepers. This seemed to last several minutes, but, in reality it was only seconds and while the train was moving 300 or 400 feet. Then came a thud, etc., the shock not being forcible enough to throw the passengers about much. This was followed by a grinding, crushing noise, and the train came to a stop. The reporter was in the fourth compartment of the English coach, only three removes from the one occupied by Reagan and Faulkner (his rowing partner). In a second's time the whole left hand side of the coach was torn out, and the passenger car plunged into it. All was confusion, mingled with the noise of the escaping scalding steam. With all this were the shricks of the wounded and the dying. While the atmosphere was filled with dast and smoke, the ground was strewn with wrecked cars and dead and wounded passengers. The seene defies description.

Many of the wounded were convey nearly crossed when the accident occurred. Further returns from the seene of disaster state

DEAR SIR: I am constrained by the feeling of gratitude which I owe to you for the service you have done for me, to say most publicly and emphatically that after having tried many and all other measures in which I had the least confidence that I might obtain a cure or ever some help from the troublesome and painful disease of catarrh and its concomitant evils, and found not only no eurs, but very little rehed, and that by almost bourly applications I have found that which now appears a perfect cure. Respectfully yours, Roment Utley, 328 West 30th-st.
